Dear Valued Customer,

Hello, and thank you for your recent request for information regarding diversifying your retirement savings with physical gold and silver.

You're probably just as concerned as we are for America's economic future. For the first time in our proud nation's history, we're facing a future where our standard of living will decline compared to those who came before us. Our two-decade-plus national binge of deficit spending and multiple bubble-and-bust cycles of the stock market has created a financial dilemma for Americans who hope, one day, to stop working and enjoy their golden years.

The U.S. faces an absolute ocean of red ink, over $30 trillion (and counting). That's money owed to global central banks, U.S. citizens, and future recipients of Social Security, just to name a few. We've seen the federal government bailout banks owned by other nations. We've seen the Federal Reserve conjure trillions of brand-new dollars out of thin air, nearly overnight! It's only a matter of time before the entire house of cards comes tumbling down before our government becomes financially bankrupt, dooming all our futures, and our children's futures as well.

We have a window of opportunity right now. To diversify our hard-earned money out of the inflated, increasingly-worthless U.S. dollar. To turn those pieces of paper, backed by nothing but hot air and vague promises to pay with real, physical assets we can hold in our hands.

My colleagues and I at American Alternative Assets have been working hard to educate everyday Americans just like you about the crucial importance of acquiring physical precious metals due to their intrinsic value. We want you to know the benefits of acquiring rare, highly-valued U.S. coins to diversify and protect your savings. I'm confident that, if you're given the facts, you will make the right decision. You will proudly join millions of your fellow Americans who own rare coins and precious metals.

Please take as much time as you need to review the enclosed materials. I know it's a lot to take in! And remember, at any time, my staff of professionals stands ready to make your experience enjoyable. We want to offer you the same level of white-glove service the world's billionaires get when they go shopping - while never losing sight of the critical protection that tangible items with intrinsic value can give your financial future.

If I can personally be of any additional service to you or your family, please give my office a call at +1 888 820 6316. You have my commitment that our organization will make every effort to serve your needs with integrity and honesty.

Sincerely,

CEO, American Alternative Assets

"We're going to monetize the asset side of the U.S. balance sheet for the American people."

— Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent, February 3, 2025

When the former hedge fund billionaire said those words standing next to President Trump, Wall Street insiders knew exactly what he meant. The Financial Times speculated immediately. Gold prices surged.

But most Americans have no idea what's coming, or how to position themselves before it happens.

This report will show you exactly what Washington insiders are doing – and why millions of Americans who ignore these warning signs could see their retirement savings devastated overnight.

In the pages ahead, you'll discover:

- ✓ The $990 billion "accounting trick" the Treasury could use to slash the national debt overnight.
- ✓ Why central banks worldwide are hoarding gold at the fastest pace in history.
- ✓ The 1934 playbook FDR used, and why Trump may have no choice but to use it again.
- ✓ What this means for your retirement savings (and what you can do about it).

CHAPTER 1

THE $24,000 PANIC BUTTON: WHY WASHINGTON INSIDERS ARE POSITIONING NOW

Here's something most Americans don't know: The U.S. government owns 261.5 million troy ounces of gold – more than any nation on Earth.

The official book value of all that gold? Just $11 billion.

That's because the Treasury still prices gold at $42.22 per ounce – a number set back in 1973. At today's market price of around $3,200 per ounce, that same gold is actually worth approximately $850 billion.

That's an $840 billion gap hiding in plain sight on the government's balance sheet.

But Here's What Most People Miss

Marking gold to today's price would generate around $850 billion. Helpful, sure. But not transformative against $36 trillion in national debt.

So what price would actually make a difference?

To answer that, you have to understand history.

During America's two previous "monetary resets," gold reserves backed a consistent percentage of national debt. In 1934, when FDR revalued gold, it backed roughly one-quarter of U.S. debt. In 1980, at the market peak, gold again backed approximately 25% of the national debt.

Today? Gold backs less than 3% of our debt.

The Math That Gets You to $24,000

If the government wanted to restore gold's historical role – to back even 17% of the national debt (the 1970s average) – here's the calculation:

$$36 \text{ trillion} \times 17\% = $6.12 \text{ trillion required gold value}$

$$6.12 \text{ trillion} \div 261.5 \text{ million ounces} = \sim$23,400 \text{ per ounce}$

At a full 25% backing ratio (matching 1934 and 1980):

$$36 \text{ trillion} \times 25\% = \9 trillion

$$9 \text{ trillion} \div 261.5 \text{ million ounces} = \sim$34,400 \text{ per ounce}$

$24,000 isn't a fantasy. It's the minimum price that restores gold's historical monetary role.

Why Would They Do This?

Because they may have no choice.

Consider these facts:

- ✓ $970 billion in interest payments in FY2025 alone – now exceeding defense spending
- ✓ $5 billion per day in new borrowing
- ✓ $1.8 trillion projected annual interest by 2035
- ✓ Central banks worldwide dumping dollars and hoarding gold at record pace

On February 3, 2025, Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent stood next to President Trump and said:

"We're going to monetize the asset side of the U.S. balance sheet for the American people."

The Financial Times immediately speculated he was talking about gold. Hedge fund managers – Bessent's former colleagues – started positioning.

What This Means for You

If gold is revalued to $24,000 per ounce:

- ✓ Gold holders see their purchasing power multiply
- ✓ Dollar holders see their savings devalued
- ✓ Those who wait face the same fate as Americans in 1934, holding currency that buys less overnight

FDR didn't warn people before the Gold Reserve Act. The law passed January 30, 1934. Gold was revalued the next day.

Those who acted early preserved their wealth. Those who waited watched it erode.

CHAPTER 2

"WE'RE GOING TO MONETIZE THE ASSET SIDE" – WHAT BESSENT REALLY MEANT

February 3, 2025 will go down as one of the most significant dates in modern monetary history. That's when Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent made a statement that sent shockwaves through financial circles – even though most Americans never heard about it.

Standing beside President Trump as he signed an executive order establishing the Sovereign Wealth Fund, Bessent declared: "We're going to monetize the asset side of the U.S. balance sheet for the American people.

We're going to put the assets to work, and I think it's going to be very exciting."

To most Americans, this sounded like typical Washington bureaucrat-speak. But to those who understand monetary policy, it was a bombshell.

The Financial Times ran a headline the same day: "Gold glitters as the unimaginable becomes imaginable." They knew exactly what Bessent was hinting at.

You see, Bessent isn't just any Treasury Secretary. Before joining the Trump administration, he served as Chief Investment Officer of Soros Fund Management. He's a hedge fund billionaire who made his fortune understanding exactly these kinds of monetary shifts. When someone with his background starts talking about "monetizing assets," the smart money pays attention.

Bank of America analyst Mark Cabana, a former New York Fed staffer, put it bluntly: "A gold re-marking could cause TGA to be paid down in ways that stoke macro activity." In plain English? Revaluing gold could generate hundreds of billions in government revenue without raising taxes or cutting spending.

Cabana went further: "In essence, gold re-marking would ease both fiscal and monetary policy."

Then, in August 2025, the Federal Reserve issued a research paper titled "Official Reserve Revaluations: The International Experience." The paper studied exactly how other countries have revalued their gold reserves – and what the effects were.

Ask yourself: Why would the Fed suddenly publish research on gold revaluation if they weren't considering it?

The insiders are talking. The question is: Are you listening?

CHAPTER 3

THE DEBT DEATH SPIRAL: WHY TRUMP MAY HAVE NO CHOICE

The numbers are staggering. And they explain why a gold revaluation may not be a matter of "if" but "when."

As of late 2025, the national debt stands at $36 trillion – and climbing by $5 billion every single day. The debt ceiling was raised to $41.1 trillion in July 2025, giving the government room to borrow even more.

But here's what should keep every American awake at night: Interest payments on that debt hit $970 billion in fiscal year 2025. That's more than we spend on national defense. It's the third-largest government expenditure, behind only Social Security and Medicare.

According to CNBC, "Interest on the debt totaled more than $1.2 trillion" in 2024 – a record. The American Action Forum reports that interest now consumes 19% of all federal revenue. That means nearly one of every five tax dollars goes straight to paying interest – not roads, not schools, not defense. Just interest.

And it gets worse. The Congressional Budget Office projects interest payments will hit $1.8 trillion annually by 2035. The debt-to-GDP ratio is now approaching 100% – near the post-World War II record of 106%.

The Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget puts it starkly: "The federal government continues to borrow $5 billion per day."

The Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget puts it starkly: "The federal government continues to borrow $5 billion per day."

Every household in America is now paying $7,300 per year just for federal interest – more than what most families spend on healthcare, gasoline, clothing, or education.

The Math That Forces Action:

There are only three ways out of a debt crisis like this:

- ✓ Raise taxes dramatically – politically impossible and economically destructive
- ✓ Cut spending massively – politically impossible when 70% of the budget is mandatory spending
- ✓ Inflate the debt away – which destroys the savings of ordinary Americans Or... there's a fourth option.

Gold revaluation generates $750 billion to $1 trillion in a single accounting change. No new taxes. No spending cuts. No new borrowing.

Is it any wonder that insiders are positioning?

As one of our customers, Phil, told us on a recent call: "I think we're in for a big problem sometime next year." He's right to be concerned. The question isn't whether there will be a financial reckoning – it's whether you'll be protected when it comes.

CHAPTER 4

FDR'S PLAYBOOK: HOW AMERICA DID THIS BEFORE

What we're describing isn't speculation. It's history. America has done this before – and the playbook is remarkably clear.

In 1933, facing the depths of the Great Depression, President Franklin Roosevelt signed Executive Order 6102. This order required all Americans to surrender their gold coins, gold bullion, and gold certificates to the Federal Reserve.

The government paid citizens $20.67 per ounce – the official price at the time.

Then, in January 1934, Roosevelt signed the Gold Reserve Act. Overnight, the government revalued gold from $20.67 to $35.00 per ounce – a 69% increase.

The result? The Treasury made a profit of nearly $3 billion (in 1934 dollars) simply by acquiring gold at the old price and revaluing it at the new price. According to Federal Reserve historical records, "individuals and institutions received currency at a rate of $35 per ounce of gold. This rate reduced the gold value of the dollar to 59 percent of the value set by the Gold Act of 1900."

In other words, dollars lost 41% of their gold-backed value overnight.

Americans who held gold before the revaluation saw their purchasing power rise by 69%. Americans who held dollars saw their purchasing power erode by 41%.

Then, in 1971, President Nixon dealt another blow. He ended the convertibility of dollars to gold entirely – the famous "Nixon Shock." The dollar was no longer backed by anything but the "full faith and credit" of the U.S. government.

By 1973, the official gold price was adjusted to $42.22 per ounce – where it remains on the Treasury's books today, more than 50 years later.

The Pattern Is Clear

- ✓ 1934: Gold revalued from $20.67 to $35 (69% increase)
- ✓ 1972: Gold revalued from $35 to $38
- ✓ 2025-2026: Gold revalued from $42.22 to... ???

Key insight: FDR didn't ask permission. He didn't warn people. He told them.

Americans who held gold before the revaluation saw their purchasing power rise dramatically. Those who held gold after the revaluation benefited enormously. Those who waited and did nothing watched their dollar-denominated savings lose value.

As one of our customers, Robert, recently confided: "I regret not doing that. I regret when it was like $200-300 an ounce I could have bought some."

The window for action is now. Not tomorrow. Not next month. Now.

CHAPTER 5

THE FORT KNOX QUESTION: WHAT TRUMP AND MUSK KNOW

Before you can revalue gold, you need to verify it actually exists. And that's where this story takes a fascinating turn.

The last full audit of Fort Knox was in 1953 – more than 70 years ago.

In 1974, there was a partial "tour" (not an audit) where only 3 of 22 vaults were opened. According to Money Metals, "Only three of 22 sealed vaults at Fort Knox were opened for verification purposes [in 1953], and only 26 gold bars among some 88,000 in the unsealed vaults were assayed for purity."

That's not an audit. That's barely a spot-check.

Then, in February 2025, something remarkable happened.

On February 15, Elon Musk posted on X: "Surely it's reviewed at least every year?"

Senator Rand Paul responded the same day: "Nope. Let's do it."

Two days later, on February 17, Musk followed up: "Who is confirming that gold wasn't stolen from Fort Knox?"

Then, on February 20, President Trump himself addressed the issue from Air Force One: "We're going to go into Fort Knox to make sure the gold is there."

The President added: "If the gold isn't there, we're going to be very upset."

By June 2025, Representative Thomas Massie introduced the Gold Transparency Act of 2025, calling for a full audit of America's gold reserves.

Senator Rand Paul captured the mood: "I think the more sunlight, the better, more transparency, the better."

Musk put it more directly: "That gold is owned by the American public! We want to know if it's still there."

Why This Matters

You can't revalue what you can't verify.

An audit would be the prerequisite to revaluation. The fact that the highest levels of government are now discussing a Fort Knox audit tells you everything you need to know about where this is heading.

When the President of the United States, the world's richest man, and sitting Senators are all publicly questioning America's gold reserves – and pushing for the first full audit in 70+ years – something significant is in motion.

CHAPTER 6

WHAT CENTRAL BANKS KNOW THAT YOU DON'T

If you want to know what's really happening in global finance, don't listen to what governments say. Watch what they do.

And what they're doing is hoarding gold at a pace never seen in modern history.

In 2022, central banks purchased 1,136 tonnes of gold – a modern record. In 2023, they bought 1,037 tonnes. In 2024, another 1,045 tonnes. That's 3,220 tonnes in just three years, according to the World Gold Council and Visual Capitalist.

Three consecutive years of 1,000+ tonne purchases. That's never happened before.

Here's what's even more remarkable: Central banks now hold more gold than U.S. Treasuries for the first time since 1996. After decades of preferring American debt, the world's central banks are now preferring gold.

A World Gold Council survey found that 95% of central banks expect global gold holdings to increase further.

Gold's share of global foreign exchange reserves hit 18% in 2024 – up sharply from the mid-2010s. Nearly one-fifth of all gold ever mined is now held by central banks.

In the first half of 2025 alone, 23 countries added to their gold reserves. The top buyers?

Poland (67.1 tonnes), Azerbaijan (34.5 tonnes), Kazakhstan (22.1 tonnes), and China (officially 19 tonnes, though the real number is likely much higher).

Why Are They Buying?

The answer is de-dollarization.

The dollar's share of global reserves has fallen from 90% in 1960 to just 57.8% by the end of 2024, according to IMF data. Russia and China now conduct 90% of their trade in rubles and yuan. The Shanghai Cooperation Organization nations conduct 97% of their trade in local currencies, not dollars.

BRICS nations – Brazil, Russia, India, China, South Africa, and their new members – represent approximately 40% of global GDP. And they're actively working to reduce dependence on the U.S. dollar.

Goldman Sachs reports: "Central banks, particularly in emerging markets, have increased the pace of gold purchases roughly fivefold since 2022."

J.P. Morgan notes: "The main de-dollarization trend in FX reserves pertains to the growing demand for gold."

Central banks aren't scared. They know something is coming. And they're positioning accordingly.

The question is: Will you position yourself before it's too late?

CHAPTER 7

WHAT THIS MEANS FOR YOUR RETIREMENT

Let's cut through the noise and talk about what all of this means for you and your retirement savings.

There are two possible scenarios ahead. And in both of them, gold plays a crucial role.

Scenario A: Revaluation Happens

Gold is officially revalued – anywhere from the current market price to significantly higher. The dollar is effectively devalued. Cash, bonds, and CDs lose purchasing power. Gold holders see significant appreciation. Those with Gold IRAs benefit from tax-advantaged gains.

Scenario B: Revaluation Doesn't Happen

The debt continues spiraling – $14 trillion in interest payments projected over the next decade alone. Inflation continues eroding purchasing power. Gold maintains its historical role as an inflation hedge. Central banks continue accumulating. Major banks still project gold at $4,000-$5,000+ per ounce based on fundamentals alone.

Either way, the conditions driving this conversation – runaway debt, currency instability, de-dollarization, and central bank gold buying – aren't going away.

The key question is simple: Would you rather be positioned before or after a potential monetary reset?

Remember what happened in 1934. FDR didn't give Americans advance notice. The Gold Reserve Act passed on January 30. Gold was revalued January 31.

Those who held gold saw their wealth protected and enhanced. Those who held only dollars found themselves holding devalued currency.

The same dynamic could play out again. And this time, the numbers are far larger.

CHAPTER 8

The Gold IRA Advantage

A Gold IRA offers a unique combination of benefits that make it ideal for protecting retirement savings in uncertain times.

Why a Gold IRA?

- ✓ Tax-advantaged growth: Traditional or Roth structure lets your gold appreciate without immediate tax consequences.
- ✓ Protection from dollar devaluation: Physical gold maintains purchasing power when currency loses value.
- ✓ Tangible asset outside the banking system: Your gold exists physically, not just as numbers on a screen.
- ✓ No counterparty risk: Unlike stocks, bonds, or bank deposits, physical gold doesn't depend on someone else's promise to pay.
- ✓ Secure storage: Physical possession held in IRS-approved depositories with full insurance.

The Rollover Opportunity

If you have an existing 401(k) or IRA, you can transfer funds into a Gold IRA without tax penalty if done correctly. The process typically takes 2-3 weeks, and you can diversify without liquidating your existing accounts.

This means you don't have to choose between your current retirement savings and gold. You can hold both – with a portion of your portfolio protected by physical precious metals.

Timing Consideration

Remember: FDR didn't warn people before the 1934 revaluation. The legislation passed on January 30, 1934. The revaluation happened the next day.

Those who waited found themselves holding devalued dollars. Those who acted found themselves holding an asset that had just appreciated 69% overnight.

History has a way of repeating itself. The question is whether you'll be prepared this time.

CHAPTER 9

Your Next Step

You've now seen the evidence:

- ✓ The Treasury Secretary talking about "monetizing assets"
- ✓ A $36 trillion debt growing by $5 billion per day
- ✓ Interest payments exceeding defense spending
- ✓ Central banks buying gold at record pace
- ✓ The President, Elon Musk, and Senators pushing for a Fort Knox audit
- ✓ The historical precedent of 1934

The window to position yourself before a potential monetary reset won't stay open forever. Central banks are buying. Major banks are raising price targets. And the Treasury Secretary is publicly talking about "monetizing assets."
